

East Anglia Event Horizon

We still do not know the back story to today's greatest headline. The whistleblower and/or hacker who dropped the CRU email pebble may not have even realized the magnitude of the resulting tsunami. We must pray that this act of heroism goes unpunished. By threatening the current annual carbon exchanges of $125 billion, which were expected to rise to a trillion, there are plenty of upset money changers turned scalp hunters in the temple.

The "Blessed" thing about the Hadley hacking is that it has eliminated the eye glazing minutiae of science from the debate. No longer do we have to discuss the correct proxy value for cosmically irradiated isotopes of Beryllium and Chlorine atoms trapped in ice core samples. There are those who claim that this blessed event occurred due to respect for scientific purity.

The real reason for the event may well be the whistleblowers recognition of the underlying threat to humanity. Regardless, the debate has shifted. The layman has a good general knowledge of the concepts of lying, stealing and taxes. We can now discuss what this issue has secretly always been about: the theft of your nation, your assets, your freedom.

To claim that the human caused global warming fraud is the greatest in science requires understanding of history of science. The ancient Greeks laid the foundation for all Western mathematics and 'science' but with a peculiar twist. The Greeks felt that all 'science' should be readily observable thru unaided human senses. Civilization struggled with this limitation for the next two millennium.

It was the great, freed minds of mid seventeenth century England that recognized the fallacy of the Greek 'natural philosophy' and modified it into the 'English Scientific Method'. It was Thomas Willis, John Locke, Robert Boyles, Robert Hooke and Christopher Wren who with a dozen others formed the Royal Society of London in 1660. They were the ones to codify the principles of measurability, repeatability and openness required by the proper use of the scientific method.

They were soon joined by Issac Newton, who aided with the newly invented telescope and mechanical clock with divisions of time in seconds that a truly modern system of scientific though was able to evolve. Without these instruments and understanding there would be no accurate navigation, no way to quantify gravity, speed, acceleration or energy.

A century later the blessings of the scientific method were well understood by the founders of a new country in a new land. Our Constitution is a largely successful attempt at creating a government with openness, where success is measurable, repeatable and if in error, correctable.

The greatest fraud in history did not begin or end with the temperature tampering toadies of Hadley, NASA and Penn State. The acts of Jones, Hansen and Mann are shameful but they are merely box cutter wielding jihadists in the coach section of the plane. The true evil genius in charge has programmed the auto-pilot navigation system and financed this hijacking from their comfortable caves in Georgetown, Manhattan and Mayfair. Their trillion dollar carbon trading scam was always central to the warming plan.

Before dismissing those who see the larger plot as ‘tin hated conspiracy theorist’, please consider the broader picture. Taxpayers have wasted $80 billion in the last twenty years on an easily refutable hypothesis. The lie is so entrenched in the government-science community that the Environmental Protection Agency has now declared your mother’s warm breath on your baby face to be a ‘toxin’.

There has been an across the board failure of all of our science institutions. The National Science Foundation was racked with scandal when a senior executive admitted on-line pornography use at work during 330 days of 2008. The foundation Inspector General said the practice was “widespread, but that ethics investigations interfered with his primary mission to investigate rampant fraud in grant contracts.” So much for taxpayer supported watchdogs and promoters of science.

The professional societies, publications and peer review groups that have aided in this fraud need serious reformation. Remedial study in ethics and the scientific method is required of all lesser players and banishment for the active proponents. To those in the months after the Hadley hacking that persist in the warmist hoax please note, you are preaching to a rapidly and permanently shrinking choir. It is nature that rules science and the empirical measurements of reality that always purify science.

As the Royal Society of London prepares to celebrate its 350th anniversary we must all now admit that we have witnessed the greatest fraud in human history. There are plenty of undeserved Nobel Peace Prizes floating around right now. Let us hope there is one available for the hacker who has freed humanity from the Global Warming insanity.

Joseph A Olson, PE
Dec 28, 2009

The author’s mission is to restore science to its rightful place. A full series of articles on climate change is available at ClimateRealist.com and welcome for debate.