

I'll Take Some E Pluribus, but Hold the Unum

The Latin phrase for 'From Many, One' and the nice companion phrase 'United We Stand' make catchy national mottos. They are useful for herding the masses in a crisis, but are disingenuous. If the 'many' did become 'one', then the elite would have a real problem. Therefore, the 'elite' will direct us to which group we shall go and the locations where we are to stand. All the easier for them to cut us down at the knees.

The elites own the major corporations, the banking system, the 'mass' media and a large part of the federal government. And yet, all this power is not enough. For there are always 'upstarts' whose drive and creative genius is a real threat to monopolies. That these upstarts are universal supporters of free enterprise and democracy is virtual treason to tyrants. These renegades must be crushed.

The monopolists have been actively crushing entrepreneurs, freedom and democracy for centuries and are now preparing for the 'ultimate solution' for this unwanted form of uprising. Did I mention that the elite own the 'education' system? Here's a one question pop quiz to see how well the mind control system has been working.

Who Invented Radio

For everyone who did not answer "I don't know" this is ridiculously simple. Why, Marchese Guglielmo Marconi invented radio and received an American patent in 1904 is the favorite answer in any poll. But Marconi's deception depended on several components patented by others, which he blatantly stole for his first 'radio'.

Marconi's first radio could 'broadcast' dot-and-dash Morse code messages over short distances and one broad frequency. To broadcast voice and to broadcast and receive many signals over many frequencies required Marconi to steal even more patents. Guglielmo was added in this effort by the robber barons of that day...and their heirs are the robber barons of today.

The Morgans, Rockefellers, Carnegie, Chase and Mellon families controlled much of America at the start of the twentieth century. They were actively involved in controlling or destroying every upstart in the country. Thomas Edison was one such upstart they quickly beat into submission.

Born to a 'rogue' father and a minister's daughter, this last of seven had learning difficulties in school and after 12 weeks in the first reader switched to 'home schooling'. By 12 years of age he was selling newspapers at the local train station and learned Morse code. He read the newswires and printed his own newspaper with 300 subscribers. His first invention, the auto-repeater at 16 was unsuccessful, but his ticker tape machine two years later sure was.

He went on to patent the light bulb in 1879, the phonograph, vitascope movie projector, dictaphone, mimeograph and the alkaline storage battery. With 1,093 total patents it's senseless to list any more. What is interesting is that his Edison Electric Company was forced into a merger, becoming General Electric and leaving him bankrupt for a while. He did not invent the radio, but did employ the real inventor for a time.

George Westinghouse was another upstart whose first invention at age 19 was the rotary steam engine. His first commercial success was the railroad air brake system he developed and patented at age 22. This son of a machinist used money from his Air Brake Company to develop the first alternating current generating and transmission system. He too was forced into bankruptcy by the elite and he too employed the inventor of radio.

The father of radio that you near heard of was Nikola Tesla, son of an itinerant farmer/preacher in Serbia who immigrated to America in 1884 at age 28. In 1887 Tesla filed for 7 US patents on poly-phase motors, generators and transmission systems. His AC power system drove the Edison DC power system out of business. He also held the dozen patents that it took for Marconi to make his 'radio' work.

Tesla sold most of his patents to Westinghouse and was bankrupted when George couldn't make his royalty payments due to his bankruptcy. Tesla had fifty of the most startling patents in history, transforming reality for all humanity. In 1943 the US Supreme Court found that he was the rightful creator of radio, years after his death.

So how did Guglielmo get the credit? Well, it helps to have friends in high places, like monopolists. This syndicate already owned coal, steel, railroads, oil and the newspapers. That also gave them proxy control of the government, courts and even the patent office. Tesla's first radio patent was filed in September of 1897 and granted in November of 1900. Marconi's patent was filed several months after this and rejected for infringement.

Realizing that this 'new' media need tight monopoly control Carnegie and Morgan, along with the now rehabilitated Edison took over the Marconi cause and he was granted a fraudulent patent in 1904. Marconi, the young Italian nobleman went on to receive the undeserved Nobel Prize in 1911.

There is always that sheepish feeling that one gets when you realize that you have been lied to. There is also that exhilarating uplift from learning the truth. There are reasons why people lie. In the case of the elite it is always more money, more power, more control.

F Scott Fitzgerald once said “The rich are different from us, they have more money”. The truth goes further than that, for the rich also have no conscious. The elite believe that only those of ‘high birth’ should be allowed the fruits of this Earth.

It is the genius of Edison, Westinghouse and Tesla that has given us the comfort we take for granted today. These three great men of genius gave us all so much, and could have given even more, had they been spared torture at the hands of the elite.

It is the heirs to these same fortunes that crushed these great men, who are now crushing the soul from America. They are filling our treasury with fiat paper and their castles with the treasure of Fort Knox. They are shredding our Constitution, our industry and our borders to create a Utopian serfdom from their distant royal past. For them there is no Unum, only lonely, broken E Pluribus to be turned to ash, in their ovens and stripped from their version of history books.

There are many who believe that this world is a search for truth. Finding truth is one of life’s greatest joys. Sharing truth is equally rewarding. It is time for you to share truth with others so that we may indeed all soon stand united.
